

Delighted Momma

Hello,

My name is Lindsay, welcome to Delighted Momma!

- Contact -

SPONSORS

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 17, 2011

DIY Braided Clay Bracelet

Yes I am obsessed with polymer clay. Its such a fun material to work with because if you mess up... you just mash it all up and start again. Today's DIY is a spin off of this project that I did a little while back.

What you will need:

- Polymer clay
- Razor blade

Knead the clay with your hands to soften it up.

Skin Care

DIY

Recipes

My Life

APOTHICA
The Most Coveted Brands In Beauty

ARCHIVE

September 2012 (4)

August 2012 (15)

July 2012 (14)

June 2012 (11)

May 2012 (18)

April 2012 (17)

March 2012 (19)

February 2012 (20)

January 2012 (18)

December 2011 (18)

November 2011 (20)

October 2011 (19)

September 2011 (20)

August 2011 (27)

July 2011 (23)

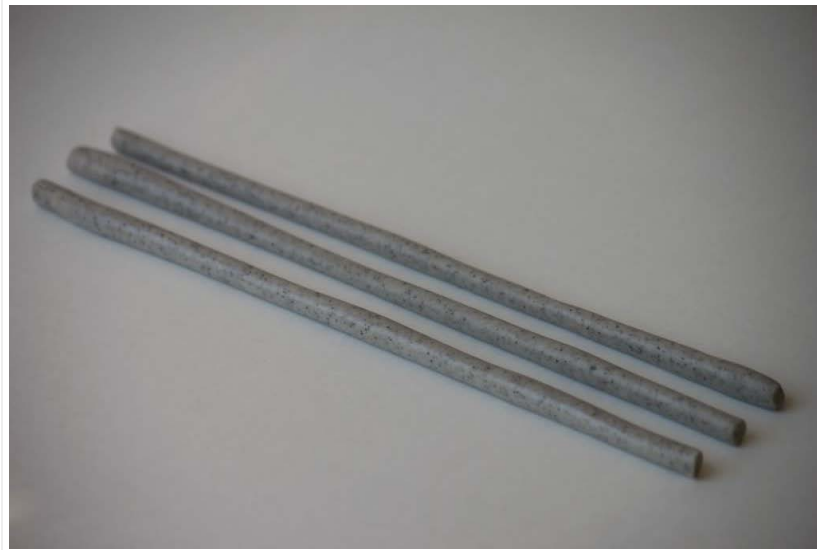

June 2011 (19)

May 2011 (18)

April 2011 (12)

March 2011 (8)

February 2011 (2)

Using the palm of your hand roll out three long tubes.

Mash the top of the tubes together and begin braiding.

Using your own wrist as a guide determine how long you want to make your bracelet. Use the razor blade to slice off the remainder.

Connect the two ends and gently mash (I cant think of a better word so mash it is) the two ends together.

Bake for 25 minutes at 245 degrees.